

Does your child
have learning difficulties?

Are you worried they're not getting the support
they need?

We can help!

We are a Scottish charity dedicated to providing direct help and support for children and young people with learning difficulties and their families. Your child does not need a diagnosis before you get in touch.

Direct help and support for parents and carers

Our friendly, dedicated staff team have a broad range of skills, experience and qualifications.

We can help you to:

- Understand your rights and responsibilities
- Work with professionals
- Access the support you and your child require

This might be about education, health or social work or other worries you have about your child.

We do this by:

- Listening to you
- Providing information and advice
- Giving practical ideas to help you work with professionals to get the right support for your child

We also offer workshops, training and information events for parents and carers.
